Mr. Barney has become one of the largest inclivities land owners in the etty through speer West Spie and in the Washington his weiten have been earried on on an emborate code. As carly as 100 a syndicate called the New York Loon and ir Barney and the late William C Whitmy up extensive tracts of vacant and in Washington Heights, mainly along Mele armed and in the neighborhood of the present automy station.

singe that time this land has nearly all been sold at a big profit on account of the immense rise in value since the vacant plots were bought. The land was sold in small plots to speculators and to builders, the latter securing liberal building loans on the property at a time when money was Improvement Company has disappeared entirely at the cresent time, although Mr. Sarney is still listed as the priesident and firector of the company The New York Loan and Improvement Company was also one of the owners of the New York and Nogthern Railroad, also called the New York and Putnam, which was disposed of to the New York Central at a handsome profit

Although all the syndicate holdings in Washington Heights realty have been sold out at a profit Mr. Barney still retains about one-fourth of his individual holdings, maintaining an office at 71 Broadway for the exclusive handling of his real estate business. His holdings at the present time include about ninety parcels scattered throughout the city. Thirteen pieces are in Broadway between Fifty-nigth and Islat streets, twelve are on Amsterdam avenue. thirty-eight in the side streets near Amsterdam avenue and Broadway, north of 125th street, and about twenty-five in the side streets and on Madison and Park avenues, south of 110th street.

The combined holdings are worth about $5,000,000. Title to the properties stands in the name of Mr. Barney and in the names of James H. Hav. his private secretary and confidential adviser and John O. Baker, who has figured extensively in Mr. Barney's real estate speculations.

Through his secretary Mr. Barney has recently become a heavy operator in real estate in Nutley, N.J., where he has usually made handsome profits by buying vacant lots and selling for building purposes.

Many of the builders who got building cans on property bought through Mr. Barnev have been unable in the last year or so to dispose of the buildings to advantage and have held the property, paying interest on the building loans. They have interest on the building loans. They have also been unable to secure permanent loans on the property which would enable them to play off the building loans. If these building loans are foreclosed, as seems likely to be done in many cases, there will be trouble for the builders.

In the big real estate companies of which Mr. Barney was a heavy stockholder there is no doubt that he has realized handsomely. At the office of the Title Insurance Company, 135 Broadway, an official of the company said that Mr. Barney's troubles had nothing to do with any of the companies in which he was interested which had their headquarters there. These companies are the New York Mortgage and Securities Company, capitalized at $1,000,000; the Title Insurance Company. and Securities Company, capitalized at $1,000,000; the Title Insurance Company, $2,000,000, of which Edgar J. Devey is presi-dent, and the Chelsea Realty, Company, $400,000, of which H. O. Havemeyer is presi-

A similar statement was made at the office of the Century Realty Company and the United States Realty and Improvement Company at 111 Broadway. The Century Realty Company is the operating department of the United States Realty department of the United States Realty and Improvement Company, just as the Fuller Construction Company is the construction department. Mr. Barney was a director of all three. The United States Realty and Improvement Company and the two subsidiary companies have paid 5 per cent. semi-annual dividends. Mr. Barney appears as a director of the Hudson Mortgage Company at 170 Broadway, a company which was incorporated February 26, 1906, to deal in first class mortgages. It was said at the office yesterday that Mr. Barney resigned eight months ago because he couldn't find time to attend the meetings, and at the next meeting of the directors his son, A. H. Barney, was chosen to succeed him. This company has already paid two dividends of 3 percent, and has large undivided profits.

The underwriting of bonds stopped and the property lay idle until the Brunswick Sites Company was incorporated in 1905 to build a ten story office building on the lots secured for the hotel. Persons who subscribed about $500,000 for the hotel company stock and who declined to pay when the Brunswick Sites Company endeavored to collect for the office building are being sued by the Knickerbooker Trust Company as registrar of Those who are being sued have handed together to fight the collection of the subscriptions, and have appointed an investigation committee to look into the connection of Mr. Barney and the Knickerbooker Trust Company with the whole scheme. The charge has been made that when the prospectus of the Brunswick Hotel Company which stated that the stock was divided into $1,500,000 preferred and $1,500,000 common stock was sent out the total amount of the preferred stock, together with a bonus for the common stock, had been eker Trust Company as registrar of

There has been much speculation for the last two years as to the interest of Mr. Harney and his absociates in the trust company and the Knickerboeker Trust Company and the Knickerboeker Trust Company itself in the financial operations of the most by W. Beunett & Co., bankers of 20 Broad.

WREAT H FOR THE HERO OF THE BATTLE OF NEW ORLEANS.

Visits the Hermitage, Looks Through Old Hickory's Rare Books, and Takes Lanch From Ancient Table -- Denies Responsbility for Business Troubles.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 22.-President Roosevelt to-day visited the Hermitage, where Andrew Jackson lived and died. On the tomb of his distinguished predecessor he put a wreath of flowers which he had ordered sent from the White House con-

From the old estate he carried a hickory walking stick, gold mounted and inscribed, cut from a tree on the Hermitage.

The property is now owned by the State of Tennessee and is under the management of the Ladies' Hermitage Association. The mansion is remarkably well preserved and its contents, including the library of Jackson, many of his manuscripts, the bed upon which he died and other furnishings, have been restored as they were when the hero of the battle of New Orleans was the owner and occupant of the place.

Upon arriving at the Hermitage the President's first act was to inscribe his name in the register, which contains the names of many distinguished persons. He then walked through the house and looked at the relics of Jackson, collected by the Hermitage Association. He lingered longest in the library. There the President examined the old volumes, among which he found many rare books. Then passing through the bedroom where Old Hickory died he repaired to the dining room and partook of a light luncheon from the ancient

Leaving the mansion the President walked through the garden to the tomb where President Jackson and his wife lie side by side. After placing a wreath upon the marble siab the Hon. John Wesley Gaines introduced to him several Mexican war veterans who stood guard about the sepulchre. He then proceeded to the grand stand, in front of which a large crowd had gathered from all the country round about.

The President's speech was largely devoted to a eulogy of Andrew Jackson, his character and his public career as a

The President was then driven to his special train. As he passed out of the grounds a camp of Confederate veterans, uniformed in gray and carrying their old muskets, drawn up beside the driveway, gave him a loud cheer.

In his speech in Nashville to-day President Roosevelt said:

"No law and the administration of no law can save any body of people from their own folly. If a section of the business world goes a little crazy it will have to pay the forfeit, and being excessively human, when it does pay for it it will want to blame somebody else instead of itself.

"H at any time a portion of the business world loses its head it has lost what no outside aid can supply. If there is reckless overspeculation just as sure as fate there will be a partial collapse to follow it:

"There has been trouble in the stock market in the high financial world during the last few months. The statement is frequently made that the policies for which I stand, legislative and executive, are responsible for that trouble.

"Now, gentlemen, those policies of mine can be summed up in one brief sentence. They represent the effort to punish successful dishonesty. I doubt if those policies have had any material effect in bringing about the present trouble, but if they have it will not alter in the slightest degree my determination that for the remaining sixteen months of my term these policies shall be persevered in unswervingly.

"My aim is to make the average man, the average citizen, the planter the farmer, the cattle breeder, the merchant, the professional man, the railroad man, the banker, every man who is really doing honest business in an honest way, big or little—to make that man feel that he must have a pride in his American citizenship; to make him realize what being an American should really amount to; to get into his soul the belief that he will not only receive justice but that he will have a part in meting it out, and if to arouse that type of civic manhood in our nation it were necessary to suffer any temporary commercial depression I should consider the cost but small.

"I do not believe for a moment that putting these policies into effect has had any real consequence in bringing about

"I do not believe for a moment that putting these policies into effect has had any real consequence in bringing about any real consequence in bringing about such conditions as we have from time to time seen in the stock market. All that we have done is to unearth the wrong-doing. It was not the fact that we unearthed it that did the damage, it was the fact that it existed that did the damage. All I did was to turn on the light. I am responsible for turning on the light, but I am not responsible for what the light showed."

"It is a difficult matter to punish the crimes of unscrupulous cunning committed by men of great wealth. It is a difficult matter to punish as he should be punished the man who, at the head of a great business concern or at the head of a great railroad, does wrong to the whole body politic by mismanagement of that property; it is difficult because as yet we hardly have the
